

ABSTRACT

Disclosed is the method of forming the gate in the semiconductor device. The present method can prevent abnormal oxidization and lifting at 5 the interface of the stack gate consisting of polysilicon and a metal and can be applied to even the single metal gate, by replacing a re-oxidization process for recovering damage of the gate oxide film generated in the gate patterning process with the oxygen plasma treatment.